ALUMNISPOTLIGHT

CLARKE HITCH

It's 1995, and a wide-eyed Clarke Hitch toddles through Norfolk Collegiate's doors. He may not recall the specifics of that day, but he knows it was beginning of a 13-year journey.

You could call Clarke's time at Collegiate destiny. It all started well before he was born. His mother Virginia graduated from Collegiate in 1981 and sent her three boys—Clarke '07 and his brothers James '09 and Sam '12—for a great education and even better experience.

"I think something my family appreciates is the family we found at Collegiate," Clarke said. "Each of us became friends with our own grade and usually one above and below, so between the three of us, we had a swath of friends that spanned five, six maybe seven grade levels. Teachers, too!"

His class sizes were perfect.

"I always felt like I could be 100 percent myself because I was so at ease in my environment, and that allowed me to push myself," he said. He especially loved that the comfortable, familiar feeling he had in class extended into the halls, out on the field and court and across the stage.

When asked where his passion for giving came from, Clarke says it started with his parents and grandparents.

"They've always been advocates of giving to causes they care about to any extent they're able. They'd always say, 'When you're a young adult, maybe that means you give pennies, but there's value in participating. It's important to demonstrate to others, this is something that matters to me,' and that's a fair characterization of how I feel about Collegiate."

Today, Clarke resides in New York City and works as a principal in the Blackstone Real Estate Debt Strategies Group where he is involved in sourcing, underwriting, negotiating and structuring senior and mezzanine loans, preferred equity and other debt investments across all asset types and geographies throughout the U.S.

Clarke Hitch '07, center, stands with his brothers Sam '12, left, and James '09 before his wedding ceremony. Clarke believes there is value in giving when and where one can and at every stage in life.

Even though he's no longer in the neighborhood, he's still committed to the Collegiate legacy.

"It's so important to create an environment in which students feel comfortable coming to school and feel like they belong to a community where they can ask questions," he said. "I will always be part of the Collegiate legacy because they've created a backdrop in which students can learn and develop as people in a family environment."

The Class of 2012 gathered to celebrate their five-year reunion at Torch in Norfolk in October 2017. They enjoyed opening a time capsule they put together their senior year at Norfolk Collegiate.

EVENTS

Alumni Kyle Curtis '04, Thomas Bishop '04, Paul Recordon '02, Charles Robinson '97, Scott Williams '04, Jenny Lester '92 and Charles Robison '92 schuck oysters at the Taste of Collegiate & Oyster Roast in October 2017.

RIGHT: Cayte Brown '08 and math teacher Rebecca Zborowski enjoy catching up with James Madison University alumni over burgers on the first stop of the On-The-Road Reunion trip.

STAY IN TOUCH

If you have alumni news you want to share, send it to Cayte Brown '08 at cbrown@norfolkcollegiate.org.

After leaving James Madison University, the On-The-Road Reunion continues south to Virginia Tech where Brown and Zborowski catch up on with our alumni in Blacksburg.

Teachers Mark McElhane, Alan Stell and Head of Upper School Anne Claywell '88 celebrate the success of Spencer Tinkham '11 at his gallery opening at the school with fellow alumni Emily Bennet '11, Jasmin Singh '11 and Charlotte Leinbach '11.

REUNIONS

The Class of 2007 celebrates its 10 year reunion at Harbor Club. The event was hosted by Erin Burton Winn and Katherine Farrell Griffin.

Richmond alumni gather at Kabana Rooftop. The gathering was a chance for the group to catch up with one another and share the happenings on campus.

The Class of 1987 remains a great group of friends. Part of the class gathered at O'Connor Brewing Co. in Norfolk to reminisce over their time at Norfolk Collegiate 30 years ago.

The Class of 2002 snaps a photo after enjoying dinner and drinks at Norfolk Tap Room for its 15th reunion.

ALUMNI AWARDS

Each year, Norfolk Collegiate's Alumni Association presents outstanding graduates with alumni awards. These awards honor alumni who have distinguished themselves in their careers and through their service to the community and school. The 2018 recipients were honored on April 25, 2018, in the Hackney Theater.

DISTINGUISHED ALUMNI AWARD

JAY JONES '06

In January 2018, Jerrauld "Jay" Jones '06 was sworn into represent the 89th District in the Virginia House of Delegates, becoming the youngest current member of the General Assembly. With his appointment followed roles on the General Laws, Transportation and Finance committees.

Outside of his political duties, Jones serves on the boards of the Boys and Girls Club of Southeastern Virginia, Festevents Ltd., the Elizabeth River Trail Foundation and the Old Dominion University Athletic Foundation's Next Generation Board. He completed his undergraduate studies at the College of William and Mary where he double majored in government and history. He is currently a partner with Bischoff Martingayle P.C.

ALUMNI SERVICE AWARD

PAMELA KARANGELEN CRENSHAW '92

Pamela Crenshaw '92, American Speech-Language-Hearing Association certified and licensed speech-language pathologist, is the owner and clinical director of Norfolk Speech and Language Services, a speech and language therapy practice serving children and adults with communication and learning disorders. Crenshaw also serves on Collegiate's Alumni Board (where she's sat since 2010) and is a Parent Ambassador for the Class of 2021.

Crenshaw attended first through 12th grade at Norfolk Collegiate and went on to earn degrees from the University of Virginia and George Washington University. She and her husband, Lew, live with their three children in Norfolk, all of whom attend Collegiate.

YOUNG ALUMNI ACHIEVEMENT AWARD

SPENCER TINKHAM '11

Spencer Tinkham '11 is regarded as one of the most talented, widely followed wood sculptors of his generation. Tinkham graduated from Norfolk Collegiate in 2011 and went on to earn a bachelor's in economics from Baylor University in 2015. Upon graduation, he began a decoy, folk art and antique restoration business in Norfolk where he resides with his wife.

A Virginia native, Tinkham became enthralled with the rich variety of wildlife along the shores of the Chesapeake Bay and its estuaries as a child. A self-taught artist, he has won several awards, including the prestigious decorative bird carving Ward World Championship Youth Division.

OAKSATHLETES

Athletics are a core component of the educational experience at Norfolk Collegiate. They focus on healthy competition that develops life skills like teamwork, accountability and goal setting. These skills serve our students well on the field, in the classroom, in their future workplaces and beyond. Below are our newest student-athletes who are competing at the collegiate level during 2017-18.
